Unemployed husband and father Leonard (Better Call Saul's Patrick Fabian) is an unapologetically old school guy living in a tech-addled world. In order to make ends meet, he plunges headfirst into the brave new world of the gig economy as a driver for DriverX, a popular rideshare service. Roaming the streets of Los Angeles by dark, Leonard finds himself drawn into a sex, alcohol, and Tinder-fueled night world where the next person to get in your car could be anyone: your new best friend, your worst nightmare, or even your next lover. Cuttingly funny and perceptive, DriverX is a timely, all-too-real look at finding your footing in the age of digital disruption.

THE LAST FILM FESTIVAL

"Hugely amusing indie.
This is farce, taken to a surreal level, both broad and intimate. Without a doubt the movie belongs to its two most famous actors, Hopper and Bisset. In some ways it comes off like a smaller version of Robert Altman's acclaimed "The Player." - U2 Smith

2016 | Movie | 98 MIN | Comedy | English | Territories: Asia-Pacific

Trailer: <https://vimeo.com/321852497>

Starring: Dennis Hopper, Chris Kattan, Jacqueline Bisset The Last Film Festival Official Trailer 1 (2016) - Dennis Hopper Movie

There are over 4,000 film festivals around the world. Where would you go if your film was turned down by 3,999 of them? When an obscure film festival is the last hope for a failing producer (Dennis Hopper) and his "disaster" of a movie collides with the homespun innocence of small town America, neither will ever be the same. Nick will do anything to get his film distributed, including manipulating his dysfunctional cast into attending the festival where Hollywood egos hilariously slam into small town politics.
